INDEX OF BASTARDY CASES IN DERBYSHIRE
QUARTER SESSIONS ORDER BOOKS

EASTER 1682 - EASTER 1784

The index is arranged alphabetically in two separate sections, one for males, one for females. The mother's parish follows her name. The putative father's parish is given only when it differs from that of the mother. However, parishes were not always mentioned. The date given is that of the first year of the volume followed by folio number. Thus the case may be a few years later than the reference date, as can be gathered from the list below of volumes relevant.

- Q5/W1 Easter 1682 Epiphany 1702
- M1 Easter 1705 Translation 1718
- M3 Michaelmas 1718 Easter 1726
- M4 Translation 1726 Easter 1731
- M4 Translation 1741 Translation 1748
- M6 Michaelmas 1748 Epiphany 1754
- M7 Easter 1754 Translation 1774
- M8 Michaelmas 1774 Epiphany 1780
- M9 Easter 1783 Easter 1784

A copy of the index may be consulted at the DHO which also holds an index covering Translation 1754 - Michaelmas 1800.

The bastardy cases which went so far as the Quarter Sessions are only a fraction of the total of illegitimate births during the period. Do not expect to find a great deal of information in the Order Books. The form of words is fairly constant throughout the period. At most, one finds the occupation of the putative father, and the marital status (or not) of the mother. The sex of the child may occasionally be mentioned. The putative father's own father is sometimes to be found standing surety for him.

It is advisable to consult the volume concerned in detail. Cases were often speed up after the child was born, or preceded by a case which was adjourned to the next sessions. Sometimes a Removal Order is later issued on the mother and/or child.

"It is a wise child who knows his own father." There is no way of being sure that the man found guilty of "begetting a bastard child" on the woman accusing him is indeed the real father. However, examples have been found of the couple marrying in one case two years later.

"...the man found guilty of 'begetting a bastard child' on the woman accusing him. is indeed the real father. However, examples have been found of the couple later marrying" in one case two years later.

The index is a finding aid only. Spelling of names during this period was variable. Usually the surname has been standardised when it seems obvious that the same people are involved in a particular case. Sometimes the christian name appears to vary for one of the protagonists; these have been left unamended as there is no way of telling which version is correct.

The index is computerised. Print-outs for individual parishes, volumes or surnames can be provided.
